Games and ideas to help pass the time on longer journeys

Car Bingo

On a piece of paper, make a 3×3 grid and either write the names of the brands in the boxes, doodle a picture of the logo or put the colour of the car.

The first one to win a line or even the whole bingo card wins!

What will they win? Maybe they get to choose where to sit on the bus or in the car, or choose a song to listen to.

20 Questions

Take turns in picking a character, person, animal, country and so on... And the rest of the group has to ask 20 questions to guess what you're thinking of!

The Memory Game

So, this is a bit tricky, but it's good fun and helps encourage memory function! How it works is you make a scenario like "I'm going to the beach and I'm bringing..." and list a few items that you'd take to the beach. Now the next person has to repeat what was said and ADD an extra item to the list.

Everyone in the group has to do the same thing and add extra items to the list – if you forget what someone said, you lose the game!

The Letter Game

Think of a category, like fruit, Harry Potter characters, kids films and the first person says whatever comes to their mind.

Now, this is where it can get tricky, the second person has to say an option that begins with the letter that the first person's ended with.

For example, say I said Banana, my friend would have to think of a fruit beginning with A, since banana ends with an A. And so on!

So, it could go like this: Banana, Apricot, and Tangerine. The game ends when no more fruits can be thought of.

I Spy

The most classic game of all time. And it's a classic for a reason! It's fun, can be challenging and it gets everyone involved. Take turns picking something out that everyone has to guess and get the ball rolling!

The Alphabet Game

Each child picks a side of the vehicle to look out from (right or left) and has to find each letter of the alphabet. Whether they spot the letter on number plates, road signs or branded vehicles.

The first person to find all letters of the alphabet wins!
